If a critic were to maintain that man as we know him rose suddenly from some other type not yet found (for the evidence is very fragmentary and slight), he would not be contradicting ascertained fact; on the contrary. s on his side the anomaly of fine skulls found in apparently very early strata; all that department is quite

That man as we know him was a vile thing for countless generations and gradually-very gradually-rose to practice the human virtues and intelligence is not proved at all. Even the vague analogy from existing savages fails. Some savages are of one character, some of another; all as old in descent as ourselves. The excessive evil affirmed of true man when first he could be so called is sheer unsupported affirmation proceeding not from evidence—for we have none—but from a mood, a desire that things should be so.-Yale Review.

Wireless Hour Signals.

When a ship is approaching shore great caution is often necessary be cause of uncertainty as to the vessel's precise position. It was some years ago that it was first proposed that wireless telegraphy be utilized to send hour signals over the sea round England to a distance of 200 or 300 miles from shore, in order that the captains of incoming ships might thus be enabled to rectify their chronometers to Greenwich time. The goverument of Canada thereupon established a system of this kind at Camperdown, near Halifax. Every mounreceiving apparatus may pick up the true time from the air.

Sandy Collects for Hospitals. Holmfirth, in the West Riding, England, has a dog, Sandy, who has been making himself a name by his clever-It was noticed some time ago that he had formed the habit of scarching for coins and picking them up. The next step was that he was taught to put them in a collecting box for the benefit of the local hospital.

Now people give him their assistnce by dropping coins before him, and whe picks up and takes to the box. think enough to remember people have throtheach will

It was of porcelain. It was about Details of the death were not two and a half feet high. It sat, squat, snug, complacent on the mantel when it was taken out of its velvet case. It had been packed among some effects that they had left with the packers when they moved from the metropolis to the little country cottage. And the packers denied all knowledge of it. Nobody could account for its inclusion in their effects. The packers declined to take it back.

> "Perhaps it's going to give us luck, mother," said Delia.

"Heaven knows we could do with some, my dear," her mother replied. They could, for they had been singularly unfortunate. The cottage was ASKS ANOTHER heavily to go to the metropolis and put theirs, but they had mortgaged it Delia under the charge of expensive singing instructors. She was to make her debut in grand opera, but. .

Well, that was a common enough story. Delia had a splendid voice, but -not quite a grand opera voice. They had admitted that when their money was gone, So Deli: and her mother had moved back to the cottage again, And Delia had taken a position as a singing and music teacher in a school

Then there was Jim Thorneycroft who wanted to marry Delia. She liked him well enough, quite as much as many girls like their prospective husbands, but not as much as she wanted to like him. At any rate, not as much as she wanted to love the man she married. And-Jim held the mort-

He had given them time-they could not say Jim had treated them unfairly. He had also given Delia time to make up her mind about marrying him. He had a fine business, and if she did, why, there was an end to the domestic problem.

"If you feel you can't marry Jim, my dear, I wouldn't ask you to," her mother said. "Only," she added wist-"we've lived here so long, haven't we, and it's a home for us."

"I'll never marry Jim." said Delia with determination.

Besides, there was Dick Haselfield, who badn't a penny, and could hardly support himself on his own meager salary. Delia liked Dick a good deal better than Jim.

And Jim was coming the following night about the mortgage-and about Delia stood looking at the idol. - It had sat on the mantel for a whole month. Its sardonic leer seemed to embrace the house and both its occupants. Delia hated it.

You have often heard of collectors of coins, postage stamps, old furniture, walking sticks and other things, but a friend of mine the other day told me ing the exact hour is sent out over the of a chap he knows who has a perfect sea, so that all vessels furnished with mania for collecting towels from different hotels throughout the section of country that he visits. It appears that the collector of towels, although quite weedthy, has a most active conscience, and does not pursue the usual plan and purioin the bath requisite, but just before leaving he seeks out the manager of the lostelry and explains to him that he would like to take one of the towels with him, but that he wants to pay for it. The manager, as a rule, is amused and also gratified, because here appears to be an honest individual, so the collector gets his towels and a receipted bill. To say the least, it is a most unusual idea .--Washington Star.

on impetus with the revelations made by Col., O. G. Forrer, narcotic ex pert, just returned from Europe with 'inside information" of the most importani sources of narcotics which are smuggled into the United States, it was learned today

Col. Forrer's reports are to be laid before the government narcotic board. for such later action as the state department may take in gaining cooperation of foreign governments to top "dope" smuggling. Secretary of State Hughes is a member of the board President Harding may be asked by he board to call upon certain counries to enter into a co-operative scheme to check the smugglers. The extent to which foreign ship crews engage in the traffic, as a source for narcotic dealers in the United States s expected to be revealed in Col. Forer's report. This government, it was stated, will seek to stop some of the raffic at its sources, by more care ul surveillance of dealers abroad.

Peculiar Beliefs Have Been Handed Down From the Earliest Days of the World's History.

When everyone seems to be sneezing, it is interesting to recall the many queer superstitions which have been associated with sneezing from the earliest times.

The Greeks always regarded it as lucky to sneeze between noon and midnight, but most unlucky to sneeze between midnight and noon. In fact, it is said that they used to get back into bed for a while if they happened to sneeze while getting up in the morn-

The old custom, which still survives, who sneeze, undoubtedly originated in the days when plagues and epidemics were rampant over Europe. It was noticed that those who sneezed died shortly afterward from the prevailing you may use my letter to help any one else. In those days people used to accompany these words with the sign of the cross, but this custom now seems to be extinct.

Another old superstition maintained that to be extended by such symptoms as nervousness, backache, lack of ambition and general weakness.

SESSION NEARING CLOSE BUT PASSAGE OF THE MEASURE STILL IS IN DOUBT.

HOPE RESTS ON FARM BLOC

There-Will Be No Extra Session in the Spring, So It Seems Certain the Soldiers' Bonus Bill Must Wait Another

Washington .- A few more weeks now and it will be over, the finale having as companions either weal or woe for the proponents of certain national legislation. There seems to have come additional information that there will be no extra session of congress in the Newspaper correspondents here cometimes wonder whether the country gets tired of reading about specific pieces of legislation and of their chances for success or failure. When one realizes, however, that' such a measure as the shipping bill is one upon which congress has fought for years on years, it seems likely to men on the ground that the country must have not only the interest of economics and politics in the thing but the interest of curtosity as to what is going to happen.

One day it is said here that the shipping bill has no possible prospect of passage; another day and one or two of its leading proponents say that they see something more than a gleam of light of hope coming through the window in the wall in the future. Lucklly for the reputations of the local soothsayers, not one of them has dared to say definitely that it is to pass or that it is to fall. Now that rural cred-its legislation has been allowed to nudge the shipping bill off the floor of the senate, temporarily at least, the hope of the friends of subsidy is that there will be kindly recognition on the part of the agricultural credits phalanx of the favor shown in giving the farmers' needs first place, and that in grat-Itude ship subsidy will be given a place in court with a chance of a ver

Bonus Must Wait a Year.

Only a few weeks before the end comes, and seemingly there will be neither time nor, so to speak, room for any legislation of any kind except rural credits, subsidy and the supply bills. Adjusted compensation for the veterans of the World war, otherwise known as the bonus, must wait for another

President Harding has declared that he will sign a bonus bill if congress will pass one coupled with legislation which will enable the government to raise the money to meet the requirements of the measure. There is nothing yet to promise that such legislation can be agreed upon. It is known that the administration still prefers what is known as a sales tax to meet the bonus case, but a sales tax has its opponents in congress in both partles and they are numerous enough probably to defeat the project.

It seems likely also that all congressional attempts to propose something which the administration can do to help out matters in Europe will be abandoned until the new congress shall meet. Washington is watching with Interest and something like fear the results of the French incursion into the Ruhr. If France, acting without her allies in the last war, shall succeed in making an arrangement with Germany satisfactory to both countries, it may be that the French will get what they want and that the Ruhr invasion will prove a success instead of the failure which freely was prophegreat Frenchman has been in Washington recently. He explained the French viewpoint better than it could be explained otherwise when he told a little story of his aged mother. He said that she asked him why it was difficult to get Germany to pay France what was owing her, adding that in 1871 the French paid Germany the in demnity money in short order.

The son tried to explain that huge sums were involved this time, that Germany says she cannot pay and that the various countries of the world are at variance as to whether Germany can or cannot pay. "Well," sald the old lady, "France paid and Germany hasn't paid, and that is the whole story and that is all I want to know about it. Let her pay."

Congress has been having something to interest it which has nothing to do with legislation. Intimations were that a Georgia representative intended to make public a list of the officials of the government who he declared were violating the law by having liquor and consuming large quantities of it. It is probable that for some little time certain officials of the government ernment trembled a bit, but so far as certain "wet gentlemen" were concerned the threat of publicity took a curious turn. The wet ones asked the man with the list to make it public and also to be sure to give the name and address of one official of the government who he had said had something like tifty cases of liquor in his possession. The thirsty ones are anxipossession. The thirsty ones are anxious apparently to find out where this man lives.

SUMMER VACATION

Harding, Not a "Traveling' President, May Take First Long Trip.

Washington, Feb. 6. - With congress packing its trunks for a long summer vacation-the first in eight years - President Harding is planning to spend a good part of the approaching summer swinging around some of the circles he neglected dur ing the campaign of 1920, and which has been too occupied to under ake since his entry into the White louse two years ago.

Mr. Harding has not been what is nown as "a traveling president." Aside from a couple of vacation trips to Florida, and week-end jaunts not far from Washington, Mr. Harding has done little traveling since he became president. He probably has de livered fewer speeches away from Washington than any chief executive in recent years. The president's friends explain this on the ground that few presidents have been so engrossed with work as has Mr. Harding. He has had congress on his hands almost continuously since he was inaugurated, which fact, coupled with the multiplicity of foreign complications that have beset the administra tion, has combined to keep the pres ident's nose fairly close to the grindstone, for two years.

West Coast Wants Him Mr. Harding has not visited the Pacific coast since he first leaped into prominence in Chicago in 1920

During the campaign, the Republicar managers did not consider it neces sary for him to make an extensive western tour, and since his inauguration the pressure of circumstances has been such that the trip has been continually postponed. A Pacific coast trip was planned for last fall, prior to the November elections, but Mrs. Harding's illness and the president's desire to complete the ship subsidy program combined to prevent it.

Barring unforseen complications in the foreign situation, this summer will see Mr. Harding on the Pacific coast, according to tentative plans now being mormulated. The president has not fully decided whether undertake the Alaskan trip this summer, but is favorably impressed with the idea, and if possible he will coming from the sea.

From the point of view of some of ting.

There is nothing in the four-power treaty to prevent the United States doing what it chooses on the coast lines of this country, but nothing much is to be attempted save possibly at one or two places on the Pacific Coast. It is Hawall and the defenses of the Panama canal which under existing appropriation conditions are holding the chief attention of the army and navy.

Plan for Pearl Harbor. Pearl Harbor already is a naval base. Such a naval base necessarily must be supplied from a distance with munitions and other material. The islands themselves cannot furnish them in sufficient quantities. So it may be somewhat interesting to know the intention is, even with the comparative ly small sums at hand, to make the Pearl harbor base defense self-sustaining for a period of five months.

Now, on paper this seems to be considerable period of time, but there are instances in history where garri sons have been compelled to hold out longer than the time fixed in this case About $600,000 will be available for the purposes of the naval base at Pear barbor during the next fiscal year This is exclusive of the army appropri ation for defense work.

In 1913, the year in which the water was turned into the Panama canal and the channel was opened for the passage of ships, it was believed the preparations which had been made for the defense of the canal were adequate. Now the feeling is that at least on the Pacific side additional defenses are necessary. The placing of these guns of defense has been recommended by the military authorities.

The maintenance of an open route through the canal in the time of war is vital to the success of American arms. Granting that there may be no trouble for a decade, the service men say that it takes a long time to prepare adequately for what may come, and that if the "what may come" comes, the money spent will be well spent.

Can Do Nothing at Manila. Under the present agreements with certain nations nothing can be done to add to the defenses of the Phillippine Islands or Guam. Corregidor island, at the water doorway of Manila, is in its natural qualifications a second Gibraltar. It has some big guns but no matter what the advance in armament may be during the next ten years these big guns must answer the purpose of defense in the day of possible pose of defense in the day of possible trouble after the ten years have expired. Army and navy men say that the money which has been asked of congress is the minimum amount consistent with anything like safety, giving full consideration to the binding power of the treaties which exist. It is understood that the amount which was asked for Pearl barbor for army and navy purposes was about three and a half times the amount which congress finally allotted. In other words, the United States in this strategle place, it is held, will be just one-third prepared, which the army and navy men say is worse than no preparedness because no defense would be possible and the money that has been spent would be
